

While I live in Norway, Your decision has an great influence on us.

Comment:

Why should consumers be forced to pay for crippling their products, when we KNOW it's only a matter of time before the "protection" is useless against those that have interest in bypassing it.

Did we not learn anything from DCC / DVD protection ?

- DVD's are infected with code that may force some warnings or commercials on people, where the positive side of the technology DVD's are "protected" with is - nobody knows...

Consumers should not pay for "features" that are made only to better control the market.
